

Czech ERP company check

ABRA, FLORES and Minerva

Do these three names represent three separate developers of a core ERP platform?

Treat ABRA and FLORES as one company in this core-ERP list. Keep Minerva separately as a QAD implementer with its own modules.

Company	Finding	Treatment
ABRA Software IČO 25097563	Develops an ERP portfolio that includes ABRA Gen and Flores. [E01] [E03] [E04]	Retain one documented core ERP developer within these three inputs.
FLORES Software IČO 27076237 Historic entity	The historic company merged into ABRA. Flores continues as an ABRA product. [E04] [E05] [E06]	Treat FLORES as part of ABRA; keep the product detail.
Minerva IČO 46682937	Implements QAD as its ERP core and supplements partner products with its own modules. [E09] [E10] [E13]	Keep in an adjacent implementation/services category for this core-platform brief.

What do Minerva's own modules contribute?

The reviewed pages do not establish module-level revenue, recurring licence income or legal IP title. For a broader software/extensions brief, assess Minerva separately instead of excluding it.

This sample classifies three supplied names by who develops the core ERP platform. It does not count independently owned firms or all software vendors.

Illustrative brief using three deliberately selected names. No client commission or human professional review.
